

by Larry Loh, Singapore Editor 19 February, 2010

print

The next great national export -- Singapore math?

Should we be proud or confused? American schools start offering "Singapore Math" in classrooms

75% Users liked this

Tell others what you think! - -

It's something students here have been drilled with for years, but now, there's a trend taking place overseas -- elementary schools and students in America have started adopting what they call "Singapore Math" in their classrooms.

The teaching method is based on a series of textbooks called "Math in Focus: The Singapore Approach", which according to the Marshall Cavendish Publishing Group

